General Comments

Children were observed during snack, an art activity, and outdoor play.

All rooms had purposefully planned programming that was detailed, and materials were well prepared for the craft. The 3-year-old group painted paper tubes with paint and glitter. Later in the afternoon, educators are going to set out different materials for the children to decorate the tubes once they are dry.
The two Ready for School Rooms made paper valentine pizzas with heart shaped pepperoni.

Attendance in all rooms was complete. All children washed hands at required times and the rooms were tidy and clean. Daily cleaning charts were posted and are being filled out.

The childcare director and educators worked as a team to support each other. In Ready for School Room B, one educator read with the children while the other remained engaged with children who were finishing snack.

Educators used positive child guidance throughout the monitoring inspection.

In the 3-year-old room, educators spoke with kindness and were patient. Enthusiasm was shown by the educators, and they played along with the children's games outside.

In the Ready for School Room A, educators took interest in the pizza craft and complimented the children on their unique designs.
