General Comments
There were no children present at the time of my visit, and children were going to arrive later today. I looked at the child files and they are well organized and include all necessary information. The indoor play area has a wide variety of materials for the children. The operator appears to put thought into which materials would benefit the children most in her ELC home. Centers are set up in the space and all materials are accessible for the children. The children have been making Christmas ornaments with plaster and they are going to decorate their Christmas tree with them. The operator explained to me that he children take part in the whole process; mixing the plaster, putting them in molds and waiting for them to dry. Then they remove them from the molds and paint them. It is evident that the operator plans her programming and the children take part in a variety of activities. The ELC home also sponsors a cat from a local animal rescue and the cat's picture is on the wall. The operator told me that they get letters periodically about the cat. The operator is taking part in continuing professional development courses, and she said she enjoys them. The next one she is attending is about outdoor play and she is looking forward to that. She is also taking part in an activity with other ELC homes in the region where they cooperate and coordinate a "missing gingerbread man" activity for the children. The operator showed me a video of the beginning of the activity and the children appeared to enjoy it.
