No anaphylactic allergies on site at this time.
Educators were engaged with children within their groups at time of inspection. Some rooms had invitations set up for the children's arrival. One group of children were engaged in making slime with their educator. Educator incorporated opportunities for literacy (printing the recipe and reading this with the children), tools for measurement and prompted the children to make predictions during the process. An additional follow up is required to ensure remaining orders have been rectified.

General Comments
