General Comments When QAM arrived in the morning, children were engaged in activities within the indoor learning environment. Some children were using bingo dabbers and paper, while others were using soft blocks to build a fort with an educator. The educator participated in the activity, assisted the children with building the fort, and was observed using positive child guidance during interactions. The indoor learning environment included a fall-themed invitation with sensory materials, as well as materials and areas for literacy, music, art, and dramatic play. The outdoor learning environment included slides, a dramatic play workshop, cars, and musical materials. Both the indoor and outdoor learning environments were observed to be clean and safe.
