General Comments

A renewal inspection was conducted today.

The children were observed during inside play only due to temperature being below -20.

The children were observed during snack time, engaged in co-operative play, reading books with their educators, and playing with playdough.

The children's learning has come alive in the learning environment in the form of webs, art, and in their personal learning portfolios. Current topics of interests include "ocean" and Author Peter Reynolds. The children were very eager to ask the inspector a lot of questions during the time there and to tell all about their stick bug.

The educators were observed engaged with the children in their learning and conversations and the children appeared happy and content in their environment and with their educators.
