General Comments

The classrooms are clean and organized. They are nicely set up for the children's use with low open shelves with materials that are easily accessible to the children.

Learning stories and children's artwork are displayed on the walls in each room.

During the visit the children were observed making a craft, having circle time, eating snack and playing outside. The educators are very dramatic when reading books to the children. One classroom read the book "The Bad Seed". A craft was created after the educator read the book to the class. The educator was observed sitting with the children asking them if they wanted to participate and how she should make her craft. For example, what color should the hair be?

Another classroom read a story "The Most Magnificent Thing" by Ashley Spires. After reading the book the educator and children began sorting through boxes, jars, string and numerous other materials that were brought in by family members so they could start creating their own Magnificent Thing.

While outside the children were observed playing on the "slippery" bridge, due to the frost, driving dumping trucks around, going down the slide, playing soccer and climbing on the wooden structure.

It is recommended the carpets in the classrooms be cleaned and the climbing structure be repaired as the wood to starting to deteriorate.
