General Comments

Children and educators in the outdoor play environment during this morning's inspection. The outdoor play environment has a variety of engaging materials for children. Operator shared plans for enhancements to the outdoor play area to include music and more creative art. materials.

Children were engaged in play with cars, in the mud kitchen, on the slide and in organized games with their educator.

Children's current interests and learning are evident in the materials, activities, and documentation present in the indoor environment. A variety of topic webs, learning stories, children's art, graphs, and photos of children are posted in the indoor environment, valuing children's contributions and creating a sense of belonging for them. A variety of documentation also provides opportunities for children to revisit past experiences, and supports educators in planning.

Documentation posted on the outdoor fence was co-constructed with families and is posted to invite families engagement since they are not entering the building.
