General Comments

The four year old group were building a fort when I arrived.
The three's room were engaged in some free play activities. Some of the children were sitting at the table painting activity with string, while others were playing with barbies, train set and wooden blocks.
The afterschool room is closed for the week due to vacations and low enrollment.
There is evidence of purposely planned programming as seen by the children's artwork and learning stories posted on the walls.
The educators were engaged with the children, reading stories and participating in the in the various activities with the children. They were observed sitting with the children and crouching down the child's level when speaking to them.
The educators gave time notices when it was time for a transition. An example of this was " clean up time will be in 5 minutes. I'm going to set the timer"
During outdoor time, the children played with bubbles, drove the lil tykes cars around, played in the sandbox in which the children made mud cakes and cupcakes. Water tables were also so set up for the children to play in.
The facility seemed to be running smoothly on the day of the visit.
