General Comments On the afternoon of my visit, children were making Mother's Day cards, keychains, and planting seeds. Both rooms were running smoothly and children were engaged and happy. The creative gallery in the RBC Room is filled with a lot of great art work by the afterschoolers. The two educators both displayed positive child guidance practices. They speak kindly to the children and offer time warnings for transitions. They have a good rapport with the children and the expectations and rules are clear. Towards the end of the afternoon, educators included different activities since it was a full afternoon due to the half day Wednesday for school. The children in the JD Irving Room were able to play tag. This is a multi-purpose room so the chairs and tables were able to be moved to the side and a large area is available for running and other games. In the RBC Room, the educator reads chapter books to the children and reads a bit each day. Today he was reading Minecraft with the children which they really enjoyed. He took lots of time to discuss various parts of the book. Fire drill records have been completed and recorded.
