General Comments
QAM visited the facility in the morning and observed the Monkey Tails and Fireflies in the outdoor play area. Children were observed using the slides, engaging in dramatic play in the mud kitchen, driving toy trucks, and interacting with their educators. Educators shared that the children's current interests include fall, families, Thanksgiving, leaves, and apples. The Fireflies are bringing apples to the facility and plan to make applesauce as an activity related to their current interests. When QAM observed the indoor learning environments, fall themes and related activities were evident throughout the rooms. All rooms were observed to be clean and organized, with a sufficient variety of materials and supplies available to support art, literacy, dramatic play, and sensory experiences. Child-to-staff ratios were appropriate at the time of observation. The parent board, fire drill documentation, and incident reports were reviewed and found to be complete and up to date.
