General Comments
There is documentation of children's learning in the form of learning stories and art on display in all rooms. The QA Monitor observed that all educators were preparing the children for outdoor play after snack time. Infant educators discussed with QA Monitor the variety of activities they offer to meet the interests of the infants such as paint, balls, water play and that they take all of these activities with them outside. This demonstrates that planning involves engaging the children and reflecting on the children's interests and abilities.
