General Comments

Two tables were set up with invitations: paper, glue, stickers and materials and another with play dough. The children were able to access the resources throughout the room on their own. One child was having a difficult morning and an educator met their needs by walking them in the stroller and walking around with them. Educators were down on the floor engaged in play with the children and helping them problem solve with one another by reminding them to use their language to tell others when they didn't like something. Children requested different times to eat their lunch and educators supported this choice. Educators joined children in the washroom to support them and give reminders, if needed for hand washing.
