General Comments Children were engaged in many forms of play during the morning. Before licensing staff arrived, the operator had made banana bread with the children. Numerous invitations to play were set out- an easel with pencil crayons and water color paints, an Easter themed sensory bin, a farm set with animals and a tracing activity with the children's names. The operator did a letter recognition game with the children before outdoor play. She set out a whiteboard, magnetic letters, and the story, "Chicka, Chicka, Boom, Boom." She sang the story to the children using lots of expression. She had another alphabet resource that was more age-appropriate for infants, so she also set that out for the other child. Planning for Spring has started, and the operator ordered caterpillars to watch the transformation into butterflies and indoor tomato plants have been planted. Outside, the children drew with chalk, played with ride-on toys and slid down the snow. The operator displayed patience during busy times and transitions. When children were missing their mommy or daddy, she offered reassuring words and comfort. She was flexible with her routine when children showed signs of wanting to go inside for lunch and she adjusted the day to begin nap earlier.
