General Comments

The operator was about to read a story to the children when I arrived. The story was " Chicka Chicka Boom Boom" by Bill Martin and Jn Archambault. While the educator read the story, she had a felt board in which she matched actions in the book. For example, in today's book the letters were put on a palm tree. The children were able to put the letters on the tree throughout the story.
The operator is very dramatic when reading stories and involves the children by asking question about the book.

After story time the children had the option to make a craft or have free play time. The children were given paper, scissors, stickers, glue and googly eyes to make the craft.
Once the craft activity was completed the children got ready for outdoor play time. The operator has snow blown paths in the backyard to make it easier for the younger children to walk around and do activities in.
While outside the children were observed shoveling snow, sliding on the hill, playing with sleds and in the playhouse and driving the l'il tykes cars in the driveway.
The operator was observed singing with the children during handwashing and diaper changing.
Positive child guidance and encouraging words were observed during the visit. One example is one child was able to put their snow pants on all by their self for the first time.
