General Comments
On the morning of my visit the children were having a science experiment. They were making potions and volcanoes. The educator had plenty of materials on hand for the experiments such as mirrors, magnify glasses, syringes, squirt bottles, turkey basters, spoons, containers to mix the materials. Colored cornstarch, flour, even parchment paper in water for snake skin. I noticed that as the children were mixing the potions together the educator was documenting the children's reactions, and what they were saying. She also took numerous photos for documentation. The educator was very engaged with the children asking questions and creating conversation. As one of the children grew tired of the experiment she read him a book "What is your favourite bug" as the other children continued to mix their potions. There are plenty of materials, both inside the center and in the outdoor play space, for the children to enjoy.
