Comments: The mud kitchen has nails sticking out along the top surface. The mailbox is rusted and has sharp edges.

General Comments Upon Licensing Staff arrival, Laura Casey and Megan Munden observed the children and Educators prepare for story time. The children sat in a circle while the Educator read three stories. The Educators were engaged and involved the children by asking questions and interacting. The classroom was clean and organized. Play stations were set up around the room with materials such as wooden blocks, books, art, a kitchen set and games. In the hallway, the children's hooks are labeled, and belongings were tidy. After story time, the children were asked if their tummy was ready for a snack and all the children washed their hands and sat down at their tables. Educators were engaged in asking the children about healthy snacks. After snack, the Educators were observed getting water bottles and hats ready for outside play. An Educator set up a string activity and the children pretended they were a super spy maneuvering through an obstacle course. The children were observed watering the vegetable garden using a water pump and playing on the balance rope. The permanent gazebos and shade structures could provide space for colouring, crafts and outdoor art such as chalk or water paint. It is recommended that additional material be brought into the outdoor space to maximize its potential and to engage all children. Staff and child files were organized and required documentation complete.
