General Comments

Children were provided with ample outdoor time when school was dismissed. Educators were continuously moving around the playground, engaging with children and maintaining sight lines. In both the indoor and outdoor environments, educators did numerous head counts and confirmed their attendance.

Licensing staff observed educators playing basketball with the children and pushing them on the swings.

When children came inside, they had the flexibility to sit and have snack or choose an activity. Pokemon, hockey, and Mario coloring sheets were ready for children to choose from if they wanted to color.

Staff and child files were checked. They were organized and easily verified. Potential Illness and Return after Exclusion Forms are being used and filled out properly.

The two afterschool rooms were spacious, inviting, and offered materials that were appropriate for the school age groups. One room has the Kindergarten to Grade 3 children and the room has areas for sensory play, loose parts, dramatic play, blocks and art.

The other room offers similar materials but for the older afterschoolers (Grades 4 and 5)

Children in this room are currently interested in Perler Beads and educators continue to follow the children's lead with this. The children have requested graph paper be added to the space so they can create their own patterns before creating the design on the template. The administrator shared that one group of children have really enjoyed playing the board game Risk and a large world map has been added to their play and the children are creating their own game.
