General Comments

Indoor environments are purposefully planned with educators providing materials and invitations to play that reflect children's current interests and projects that are being explored. Invitations that invited children to create, make hypotheses, engage with literacy, and play games, were observed today.

Documentation of children's learning posted throughout the environments demonstrates the many ways educators value the work and learning of the children in their group.

Children's print, art work, questions, responses to questions and photos of families are also posted creating a sense of belonging and valuing the children as active participants in their own learning.

Requirements under red phase of COVID-19 recovery being followed with regards to screening, cleaning, grouping, and mask wearing.
