General Comments

Upon my arrival, children were arriving from school. There were three different groups with three different educators that arrived within a few minutes of each other. The children proceeded to the washroom to wash their hands for snack. This was done in an organized fashion and evidently a routine has been established for these children.

The children went to their tables and had snack. Once they were finished a child had brought in timbits to share in honor of their birthday. The educators served the children and were observed having conversations and engaging with the children. They interacted in a calm and kind manner but were firm with their guidance. A good rapport has been established between the children and the educators.

The school age room is clean and organized. It is set up with areas of learning that include puzzles, games, a gross motor area, block area, manipulatives, art, dolls, kitchen and accessories, dinosaurs and a big cozy quiet area including soft materials and books.

The educators have a balanced schedule allowing the children to engage in a variety of experiences. To reflect these experiences, I observed many learning stories posted on the wall in the hallway. The children's artwork was also posted inside the classroom.

After snack, the children proceeded to clean up and get ready to go outside into a forest park. The educators informed me that outdoor play is an important part to the school age schedule.

The files are organized and complete. I was able to verify all documentation that is required. I can now recommend facility for licensing.
