General Comments

On the afternoon of my visit, it was a cold and rainy day. Children were very engaged indoors with the different centers that were set out for them. The space is large and open and children have ample room to engage with different toys and resources.

I observed children coloring, building with large foam mats, playing Barbies in the dramatic play area, and creating with playdough. There were Lego and Board Games set out as well.

I checked Fire Drill records and First Aid Checklists and both are up to date. Incidents are also being recorded in a book and this is being done correctly with dates, details, and parent signatures.

Staff files were also checked and are complete.

The educators provided a warm welcome for afterschoolers who were arriving and asked them about their days. I heard lots of praise and kind remarks when commenting on children's drawings. Time warnings were given when transitioning to tidying up and getting ready for snack.

Children's belongings are stored separately and the educators have implemented fun bins. Each child has a plastic bin with a lid that holds their drawings from the week, coloring pages, crafts, and any small toys or trinkets that the child wishes to keep at daycare to use in their play. This is great for this age group!
