| General Comments |
| Children were outside playing prior to my arrival before it got too hot. Children in the first class were in the process of deciding as group what group game they wanted to play, in the end they all decided on playing "musical chairs". The educator gave the children the choice to play or not, those who did not wish to play were permitted to do another activity. The educator did a great job in ensuring that all children's opinions were heard. The second class were free playing, observed children doing crafts, chatting and reading books. Once it was time to clean up for lunch, one educator playing "swing man" with the children while the other educator in the room sanitized the table. This proved to be a great transition time for children, leading into them washing their hands before lunch once they were able to collectively guess the secret word on the table! Facility uses the school park and the wooded area next to the facility to play in outside. Educators ensure that a safety check is done each time they go out and that appropriate measures are taken should something be deemed unsafe. Educators then assure to document it on their outside safety review checklist. |
