General Comments I arrived at the facility and the children were playing freely. The educators were engaged with the children in play and conversation. The environment is set up with many learning centres and a variety of activities for the children to take part in. This includes but not exclusive to puzzles, animals, cars, dress-up, kitchen, a doll house, lego, blocks, sensory and art. A routine has been established with the children. I witnessed transitions from free play, handwashing, quiet group time, snack time, and outdoor time. The transitions are expected by the children and moved forward in an organized and calm fashion. I had a conversation with the administrator regarding Professional learning hours and how that process should look in the licensing year. Each educator is required to have 10 professional learning hours in the licensing year. A pre-planned program and evidence of the children's learning is evident. Educators are using a journal to write down planned ideas, a calendar for school age children. a portfolio for each child, pictures of the children and learning stories were seen. The children have a good rapport with the educators. Gentle reminders are used when necessary and children are encouraged to use words to express themselves.
