General Comments
A renewal inspection occurred in the afternoon on the license. Licensing arrived prior to the children's arrival from school and observed when the children arrived from school and then prepare for outside play. All staff files and a random review of twenty children's files occurred and were verified complete. Educators indicated that the children have been interested in making loom bracelets, diamond painting, experiments such as making lemonade, puffy paint, cloud dough, slime and mixing milk and vegetable oil to observe what occurs when these two liquids combine. Licensing observed that in the indoor learning environments the children have access to Lego, paint, games, blocks, doll houses, trucks, dramatic play, creative art materials, and books. During outside play, licensing observed the children playing ball hockey, playing on the school's stationary equipment, swings, and climber as well as in the cleared wooded area adjacent to the school playground. Educators were observed by licensing positioning themselves throughout the outside environment so that the children were always within their sight. During inside play, licensing observed the children having afternoon snack after handwashing from outside play, building with connectors, creating art (fortune tellers), engaged in dramatic play in the play kitchen, and socializing with their peers. Discussed with the on-site administrator to ensure that the children take their water bottles with them when going outside to play. Educators were observed using positive child guidance techniques and re-direction when speaking and interacting with the children.
