General Comments

The play environments are purposefully planned with materials and invitations to play that invite children's engagement. Multiple topics were being explored in each learning environment and the materials available invited further exploration of the webs that were posted. Learning stories also highlight the recent learning and discoveries of individual and groups of children.

Photos of children holding their open-ended art pieces is great! The pride on the children's faces was evident and is a great way to connect the child to their work. It also invites conversation as children can revisit and share with others about their process.

Positive interactions were observed as educators engaged with children at their level; reading stories, playing blocks and puzzles, and at the art table.
