General Comments

On the day of my visit the center was running very smoothly. The educators communicate well with each other when it is time to cover lunches, breaks and prep time.
There is evidence of planned programming and there is plenty of documentation and children's artwork is posted on the classrooms and hallways throughout the building. Educators were observed planning and preparing materials for the upcoming events like pink shirt day.
The educators interacted with the children at their level during play and story time.
Children were also seen going to the open shelves in the rooms to get the materials they wanted to use.
