General Comments

The children were getting ready for snack time when I arrived. After handwashing the children were able to get their lunch bag and pick what they wanted to eat for morning snack. After snack time the operator asked the children if they wanted to paint. The operator and children got the art materials off the shelf and put them on the table. There were paper, various colors of paint, stickers, egg cartons, glue scissors and plenty of glitter. After about 45 minutes when the painting/craft activity was done, the children helped clean up by washing the paint brushed and trays and putting the remaining materials back on the shelf.
When everything was cleaned up, they operator got out the rice sensory bin. This included multi-colored rice, wooden bowls, cups and utensils.
The operator follows the leads and interests of the children. She is very enthusiastic with the children and maintains a consistent demeanor when the environment becomes more challenging and redirection is required. The children appear comfortable with the operator and space.
