General Comments

During the inspection the QA Monitor observed that some of the children are playing outside on a snow hill. The staff have positioned themselves to ensure adequate supervision. The children who were inside at the time of the inspection were playing in small groups while their educator prepared the materials for a group activity that was going to be introduced this morning: building a diorama of an arctic animal habitat which is the emerging interest recorded on the planning sheets. This demonstrates that the educator has a purposely planned and documented program that builds on the interests of the children in the group.
