General Comments A renewal inspection was conducted for the school-age program during the afternoon. The school-age children were observed participating in a variety of indoor and outdoor activities. Indoors, the children were observed playing board games, building with LEGO, playing catch in the gymnasium, engaging in art activities using glue, markers, and construction paper, creating figurines with pipe cleaners, bouncing on large balls, and playing the piano. Outdoors, the children were observed using stationary play equipment and participating in games including catch, badminton, and tag. The educators were observed actively supervising children throughout the inspection. Outdoors, educators were positioned throughout the play area to maintain visibility of the children. Indoors, educators were observed engaging with children through play and conversation. The learning environments were arranged with a variety of open-ended materials that supported children's play, exploration, and learning. The materials were stored on low, open shelves, making them accessible to children and supporting independent choice. Documentation included planning sheets and photographs displayed on the parent information board. Licensing staff discussed ensuring the documentation binder reflecting previous play experiences is current and displayed in a prominent location. The following records were reviewed: Incident logs, fire drill records, daily attendance records, playground inspection records, a sample of children's files, and all staff files. Licensing staff also discussed ensuring relief staff have their staff files available when working at alternate sites. The facility is recommended for licensing.
