General Comments Licensing staff conducted the renewal inspection for the second license within the facility. Upon arrival, a two-year-old classroom was observed participating in a "car wash" activity. The educator had set up a sensory table with water, soap, sponges, toy cars, and a homemade car wash made from recycled materials. The children actively engaged in the activity while the educator participated alongside them. One infant group was engaged in play with toy cars and airplanes, with the educator playing with the children on the floor. Other groups went outside for a walk or to play in the outdoor play area. The outdoor play area contained a variety of age-appropriate materials. Later in the morning, activities observed included fall-themed sensory tables with fall colours and loose parts, colouring fall leaves, and using fall-coloured clay. One group participated in a word association game with their educator before transitioning to lunch. Diapering and bathroom routines were completed as the children transitioned before and after lunch. Children washed their hands before eating and then settled for quiet time or nap. Only positive child guidance practices were observed during the inspection. Staff and child files were reviewed and found to be in compliance. Licensing staff recommends the program for renewal.
