General Comments Upon my arrival the preschool children and their educators were reading a book. Afterwards, they practised their Christmas concert and the educator had set up three invitations for play, with a sensory bin with rice and one to practise colours and letters. The Centre is clean and organized. The children have access to all sorts of materials of different categories to meet their interest and educational needs such as games, books, blocks, art supplies, dramatic play materials and Legos. Pre-planned programming is evident. There are learning stories on the walls and children's art projects. It was evident that the educators did a recent change in materials as there were books regarding winter and the holidays. There is also a Christmas tree and other holiday and winter theme decorations and children's art around the Centre. The playground was inspected and is in compliance with all the regulations. It was the first snow of the season, and the children were enjoying playing in the snow and made a snowman. The children were also playing on the large structure and making snowballs. The educators were engaged with the children outside, they were moving around the playground to ensure proper supervision. The educators were attentive to the children and were observed consoling them when needed. The educators were also heard speaking to the children in a respectful manner and providing positive child guidance such as gentle reminders. I joined the educators to pick up the children at Park Street School. The educators greeted them with excitement, they were organized and counted the children multiple times and referenced their attendance list. Walking back the children were well supervised, they had the children walking in pairs and reminded them often to stay closer to the left side of the sidewalk. I recommend for renewal.
