General Comments Upon the licensing staff's arrival, the pre-school aged children were waking up from a nap. Soft music was playing in the background, and the lights were turned off. Some children were still sleeping while other children engaging in free play activities. Some children were playing with dolls, doll houses, building blocks and creating artwork. One educator was observed picking up a child that had just woken up from a nap and picked him up to comfort him. The educator was observed reading a book to a few children in the "cozy corner" and explaining some words in the book. The educators were in touch with the children's needs and were engaged in the children's activities. The indoor environment was clean and well organized; all personal items were labelled and stored in their cubies. Child profiles were checked along with fire drills and daily attendance. All documentation was complete. The school aged children arrived at the center and played outside in the outdoor play area. The children engaged in free play activities such as playing basketball, tag, "bey- blades" and Pokémon cards. Some other children asked to have a snack, and the educator encouraged the children to wash their hands before eating. The children agreed and then proceeded to have a snack. The educator was engaged in the children's activities by playing with them.
