General Comments

A renewal inspection occurred today. When licensing arrived, educators were setting up environments for when the children arrive from school. There was a checkers invitation and board game "trouble" as well as an "imagination station". Art materials were provided in various forms, as well as mark making materials. One riddle was set up on the white board "What has bark but no bite?", and the children were given the opportunity to write their guesses, and child responded with the answer "A tree".

Educators were engaged with activities with the children. One educator played a game of checkers, while the other was helping with snack. Snack was apples and cheerios.

All materials and props were displayed, organized and labelled to support maintenance and care. In the loose parts area, children were playing with blue material pretending it was a pond with fake Lilly pads on top. Licensing spoke with educator and is recommending a "tough tray/sensory bin" for all loose parts in group 1. Children would benefit from a space dedicated for all of their small loose part materials on their level and not only the floor.

All files were verified and completed. Fire drills were also up to date and completed.
