General Comments

I was screened and logged in upon my arrival. The center is following all the COVID guidelines well. The indoor area has lots of natural light and a variety of materials and activities for the children. There are many natural materials in the classrooms. The 4 year old class made paper mache planets and the process was described to me. The children in the class are interested in planets right now and enjoy learning about them.

The center has a focus on outdoor programming. There is a spacious and treed outdoor area that has been developed into additional areas where children can learn and play in the natural elements. During my visit I saw different areas where children had built lean-tos, the start of an igloo, and a snowman. There are also several places where the children can go sliding. There is a warming shelter and other types of shelters for different weather conditions.
