General Comments

A Monitoring Inspection occurred on July 28, 2025.

Children were observed during indoor free play. Educators shared that the children are currently very interested in an ongoing anatomy project focused on the human body, as well as a gardening project where children are picking and eating vegetables grown in the classroom. Additional activities observed included puzzles, play dough, and various building activities.

Educators were seen engaging with children by asking thoughtful questions and expanding on the children's ideas. Books selected for the classroom reflect the current interests of the children, and various forms of literacy were present throughout the indoor environment.

The daily routine is posted, and a daily incident log is maintained. Outdoor play is scheduled for at least one hour in each four-hour block when the majority of children are present, weather permitting. Educators make intentional efforts to extend curriculum outdoors and incorporate elements of the natural world into the indoor environment.

Several forms of documentation were observed throughout the facility. The learning environment reflects ideas from the web or learning stories, which are visible in areas such as art, library, kitchen, and dramatic play. Drinking water is available to children throughout the day.
