General Comments

The Quality Assurance Monitor is on-site for a monitoring inspection. During the inspection, the Quality Assurance Monitor was able to observe during indoor free play, lunch time and nap time. The Quality Assurance Monitor observed that the attendance records were accurate and reflected all children present at any given time. The attendance records were complete and if children were absent, the reason for the absence were clearly indicated on the attendance records. The attendance records were recorded using the attendance form provided by the department in the Operator Manual, Appendix 10. No alterations to the form was observed during the inspection.

When the infants transitioned from outdoor play to lunch, the Quality Assurance Monitor observed an educator singing lullabies to the infants while undressing them and preparing them for handwashing and diaper changing.

The Quality Assurance Monitor observed lunch and nap time procedures. The Quality Assurance Monitor was able to observe one infant that was falling asleep in their highchair during lunch time. An educator respected the child's needs by allowing the child to go rest in their bed while the other infants finished eating. During nap time, an educator in the infant room was observed rubbing a child's back to help them soothe themselves to sleep.

The Quality Assurance observed educators completing the daily information sheets in a timely manner, following a diaper change and following lunch.

The ratio was respected at all times during the inspection and the Quality Assurance Monitor was able to observe a group of children play "Duck, duck, goose" in their classroom as a large group activity. All groups played outside during the inspection.
