General Comments
Upon entering the learning environment in the morning, the QAM observed multiple learning invitations available to children, including art activities, science experiments, puzzles, Lego, and Catan. Children were observed taking clay sculptures they had created the previous day outdoors to paint. Additional observations included children engaging in construction play with Magna-Tiles. During outdoor play, children were observed painting their sculptures and participating in a game of football. Child-to-staff ratios were compliant with licensing requirements. Staff files were reviewed and found to be current, complete, and up to date.
