General Comments Children in all classes were engaged in indoor free play activities when I arrived for today's monitoring inspection as it was raining. Children were observed playing board games, arts and crafts (there was a drawing competition going on with the school-aged children), magnetic blocks, puzzles. School-aged children were also observed looking at Pokémon cards. Educators in all rooms were observed to be interacting with the children throughout the whole inspection. Preschool educators were observed signing songs with the children, and partaking in their games. The school-aged educator was observed sitting and chatting with groups of children and ensuring he made rounds to all the different groups to interact with them as well. Preschool educator was observed helping children properly washed their hands after using the washroom. One group of preschool children were observed making their very own "Captain America" shields out of paper plates. Educator stated that the children are very into superheroes lately. All staff files observed today were found to be in compliance with regulation. Please ensure that the few documents that have been updated are added to the respective staff file.
