General Comments
The children were building forts this morning, enjoying their finished forts by laying with their stuffies underneath. The large open space is welcoming with curriculum areas represented. A table is set up in front of the window with a variety of writing utensils and paper. The children have been creating maps based on a recent book. One corner includes a kitchen, cash register, and space to imagine and create. There are a lot of soft elements within the room including a large selection of books easily accessible to the children. Children eat their meals in the kitchen at a small table. The operator sets out their food and allows them a choice in what they would like. After snack, the operator read a story book to the children with lots of expression, providing time and space for the children to make connections and ask questions. The children then chose an information book to explore with the educator. Some familiar songs were chosen for dancing taking advantage of the large space. Children enjoy going outside each morning and afternoon spending even more time outside on nice days.
