General Comments
Copilot said: Room 5 QAM observed the children in their outdoor learning environment. Children were engaged in a variety of experiences, including using the swings, jumping on tires, moving logs, and listening to music. The educator shared that insects are a current area of interest for the children. The indoor learning environment contained invitations to play and documentation that reflected the children's interests and learning experiences. Room 6B QAM observed the children in their outdoor learning environment. A variety of learning experiences were available, including an art area, block area, cooking area, and opportunities to listen to music. Invitations to play were prepared throughout the environment to support children's engagement and exploration. Educators were observed actively engaging with children and supporting their participation in the learning experiences.
