Renewal Inspection:

A renewal inspection was conducted during the afternoon for the school-age program.

Upon arrival, school-age children were observed washing their hands. Following handwashing, the children participated in snack time and then engaged in a variety of age-appropriate activities. Children were observed playing with LEGO, action figures, building racetracks and driving cars, constructing flowers using a flower connection set, engaging in dramatic play, and creating spider webs using sticks and yarn.

The educators were observed actively engaging with the children throughout the program, supporting play experiences and interacting positively with the children during activities. The environment was organized and provided opportunities for creative, constructive, and imaginative play

The classroom contained a variety of open-ended materials available for children to use during play. Materials were organized in baskets and were accessible to the children. Learning interest centers were clearly defined and arranged throughout the environment. Current documentation of children's activities and experiences was displayed within the classroom. Photographs of the children and samples of their artwork were displayed throughout the indoor environment.

The following records were reviewed: incident logs, fire drill records, daily attendance records, all children's files, and all staff files.

The following discussion took place with the on-site administrator:

1. A Magic Eraser was observed to be on the coat shelf. The administrator was advised to ensure that all Magic Erasers are stored out of reach of children.
2. Two green baskets were observed to be broken. The administrator was reminded of the requirement to ensure that all equipment and materials are maintained in good repair. The broken baskets were replaced during the inspection.
3. The daily routine was not posted. The administrator was advised that both the after-school schedule and the full-day schedule must be posted in a visible location.

4. A colorful shelf with buckets was observed to be unsteady. The administrator was advised that the shelf must be repaired, secured, replaced, or removed to eliminate the safety concern.

The facility is recommended for licensing.
