| General Comments Upon arrival at the school, I was signed in. This was my first visit to the program since it has been licenced. The children were having some time for free play upon my arrival, and they chose to play with the doll house and the blocks first. After free play, the educator put on some music for the children, and after the children danced around for a while, the educator read the children a book and sang a song. I looked at the indoor play area and noticed that there was a variety of materials and activities for the preschool children. Everything is kept on low shelves for easy access by the children. I suggested to get more materials for the school age children to play with and the educators informed me that they have already ordered more |

General Comments

materials for that age group and they are just waiting for them to arrive. I noticed children's work displayed on the walls.

I noticed that all required postings are up on the board outside of the classroom. There have already been three fire drills completed this year so far, which is more than required by regulation.

I looked at the staff files and child files. There was some information missing in the files which will have to be added. All the staff checks and first aid certification are up to date. Just a reminder that one staff's first aid certification will be expiring in November. I also noted that all required consents are present in child files.

The program appeared to be running well on the day of my visit.
