General Comments
During the visit, the infant group were observed jumping on the cushions and driving trucks on at ramp. The educator was engaged with the children, sitting on the floor and catching the children as they jumped on the mat. The preschool children were having some free play time. They were playing with dinosaurs, play doh at the table. A sensory bin was also set up with sand, rocks and trucks that the children were playing in. Due to the rainy day some of the after-school children were watching a movie, "Cat in the Hat". Others were playing Penguin Peril game at the table before lunch. The materials throughout the facility are arranged on low open, labelled shelves that are accessible to the children. Documentation is in the form of learning stories and webbing. The Children's artwork is posted throughout the rooms. Each classroom has pictures of the community, the children and their families. Had a conversation with the Administrator regarding educators that are under 19 years old that they cannot be left alone with the children. The administrator stated they she would come up with a plan to that it does not happen. Everything seemed to be running smoothly during the visit.
