General Comments
Upon arrival the children were in the outdoor play space. The preschool children were observed digging in the dirt, cooking muffins, bread and cupcakes in the mud kitchen, playing at the water table, and blowing bubbles. The afterschool children were observed playing on the swings, building with tires and boards and running through the field. While outside the educators were engaged with the children, digging in the dirt reading stories, cuddling and dancing with them. There is evidence of planned programming as seen by the learning stories and children's artwork posted on the walls. Sensory bins are set up both inside and in the outdoor play space. As the children came inside for lunch, they had a bit of free play time as the educators prepared the lunches. When is time for clean up the educators were overheard saying " use your binoculars to find toys on the floor." Please clean up the parent board and add my contact information.
