General Comments

Upon arrival for the annual renewal inspection for Go-Go After School High Point Plaza 2, licensing staff observed children preparing for their outing to Wilmot Park. Some children were using the bathroom, filling their water bottles, and putting on pinnies, while others who were ready engaged in activities such as playing with LEGO and reading books. Additional age-appropriate materials available included wooden and magnetic blocks, dolls, crafts materials, toy animals and cars.

While waiting for the bus, educators and children were observed applying sunscreen and playing together on the playground. A head count was completed prior to boarding the bus.

Upon arrival at Wilmot Park, another head count was conducted to ensure all children were accounted for. The park was organized into various play stations. The group first ate popsicles together, followed by a game of X-Tag with their educators. Later, the children participated in parachute play. Bubble activities, and various ball games were available at different stations.

A first aid kit was present and accessible at all times throughout the outing.

During the visit, licensing staff also reviewed staff files and children's profiles, all of which were found to follow regulations. Monthly fire drills were completed as required, and positive child guidance was consistently observed.

Licensing staff recommend for renewal.
