General Comments A Monitoring Inspection was conducted on November 20, 2025. Children were observed participating in indoor free-play activities. The educator shared that the children are currently highly engaged in a variety of interests, including a pretend doctor's office, science explorations at the light-up table, LEGO construction, and creative art experiences using a range of materials. Throughout the visit, the educator was consistently observed using positive language and offering gentle reminders to guide and support the children. A daily incident log is maintained, and monthly emergency evacuation drills are completed and posted for review. The daily routine was clearly displayed. The learning environment was well-organized, welcoming, and reflective of the children's interests. Books connected to current themes were accessible, and children's artwork was thoughtfully displayed throughout the room. The dramatic play area was set up as a doctor's office complete with a waiting room and reception desk—was particularly engaging for the children. Well-defined learning and play areas were evident. Indoor traffic areas and outdoor walkways were clean, uncluttered, and safe. All toxic products, including cleaning supplies, were securely stored out of children's reach. Daily activities are intentionally planned and documented within the program. The programming reflects the children's interests and developmental needs, providing opportunities for exploration, discovery, and meaningful play-based learning.
