General Comments
Upon arrival the children were playing outside. Almost immediately some of the children greeted licensing staff and offered tea from their potion station. This station is set up with water of different colors and accessories to serve their creations from. Throughout the day it was observed how both the indoor and outdoor environments have fostered the children's imaginations. Also observed was a rock station, a train, logs, sand and water play, a reading station, a fairy garden, digging toys, a covered block area, a quiet area with hammocks, a garden where the children planted pumpkins, a mud kitchen, water table and a sprinkler system and a fountain. The space is large with too many materials to name but it offers balance and many learning opportunities. Upon arrival, a cozy cubby area was observed. The area has two child sized comfy chairs, the parental bulletin board and many framed learning stories of the children's experiences. The children's names were written on a wall and the children had a labelled area for their personal belongings. The indoor environment also has an abundance of materials and learning centres set up for the children. There is a separate room for dramatic play, a science area, musical instruments, sensory, a doll house, loose parts, tools, a ramp with a variety of balls, a large cozy book area, and block area to name a few. The Operator stated that the children are very interested in camping and fishing. There was an area set up with a picture of a body of water, a container with plastic fish, and a picture of a boy with a man fishing. The Operator builds on the interests of the children and will supply materials to guide their interests. A daily routine is posted with pictures, there are blocks with the children's pictures on it, and the Operator has individual clip boards posted in the art area with their artifacts displayed. There is also a digital photo frame showcasing different experiences in one of the rooms. Licensing staff had conversation with the Operator regarding transportation. If you should choose to transport in the future, please provide a Change in Service Application and proof of insurance to your Quality Assurance Monitor stating that you are adding transportation to your license.

General Comments

Operator is aware of areas in the outdoor play area that may need more surfacing and plans to put it into place.

Please ensure when filling out incident reports that they are done individually and signed separately by the parent(s) of the children who are involved as discussed.

Diaper changing and handwashing was completed prior to lunch. The children are allowed to take their time to eat and are not rushed. The Operator stated that they are flexible when putting the children down for nap as some of the children take longer to eat. Two children left prior to nap time. The children sleep in the larger room on expandable cots. The infant sleeps in a play pen but was not present for nap today.

The information required for licensing is organized and was easily verified by licensing staff. I can now recommend facility for licensing.
