General Comments
Renewal Inspection: A variety of play experiences were observed both indoors and outdoors during the visit. Indoors, dramatic play materials, sensory toys, and mark-making opportunities were available and in use. Interaction between the educator and child during play was also observed. Outdoors, play experiences included digging in the sand with toy trucks, bike riding, swinging, and play with baby dolls. The indoor and outdoor environments were arranged with a variety of open-ended materials that supported exploration and play. Materials were clearly labeled and stored on low, open shelves, allowing for easy access and independent selection. The environments appeared organized and welcoming, with a range of materials available to support children's interests and engagement. Documentation throughout the environment was current and reflective of children's past play experiences. Photographs of children and samples of artwork were displayed throughout the space. The operator shared that the children are currently interested in trucks and cars, animals, mega blocks, and magnetic tiles. Materials available within the environment reflected these interests and provided opportunities for continued exploration and play. The following records were reviewed: incident logs, fire drill records, daily attendance records, infant, toddler daily sheets, professional learning hours, all child files, and all staff files. The facility is recommended for licensing.
