General Comments A Monitoring Inspection was conducted on August 25, 2026, to follow up on outstanding orders issued by the Quality Assurance Monitor in advance of the facility's upcoming renewal inspection. During the visit, it was determined that the previously issued order regarding dramatic play materials remains outstanding, as there was little to no evidence of materials available to support dramatic play experiences for children. Examples of dramatic play materials may include items such as play kitchen equipment, dolls and doll accessories, dress-up clothing, puppets, toy telephones, cash registers, grocery items, baby care accessories, tools, and other materials that encourage children to engage in imaginative and role-playing activities.
