General Comments

Licensing staff arrived at the facility to conduct a monitoring visit. Some of the children were just finishing snack, and others were playing at the tables in the adjacent room. The atmosphere was relaxed and the children and staff were very engaged with each other and in the variety of activities that were set up for them. Some were painting on easels at a table, others were building magnetized maze marble runs, the tables in one room are white boards that can painted and drawn upon, there was a dramatic play area, reading center and the whole environment was clean, bright and well set up for the children's use. The materials were available to the children, and they all displayed a high degree of collaboration with each other and their educators and independence.

After snack and free play the group met to discuss their day and then they went outside to play before it got too dark. The entryway had all the postings on their parent board, the staff have all the necessary checks, and the programming was innovative and imaginative. The children are interested in dragons right now and they had some interesting dragons that they were playing with. The theme on the board for this week was Imagine, Build, and Create.
