General Comments QAM conducted an afternoon inspection of Rooms 4 and 5. Upon arrival, children in both rooms were observed sleeping on their cots, with educators present and providing supervision. As children awoke, a range of activities was available, including cars, dramatic play, playdough, colouring, and sensory table experiences. These materials were accessible to support children transitioning from rest time. Documentation was observed on the walls in both rooms, reflecting programming related to colours, Easter themes, movement activities, and outdoor experiences. Educators reported that transitions within larger group settings are supported through the use of music and singing. They also indicated that children are divided into three smaller groups, with one educator assigned to each group during routines such as washroom use and preparation for outdoor play. Child-to-staff ratios in both rooms were observed to be in compliance at the time of inspection.
